How to Host a Blind Wine Tasting

Set the Table Blind

Number four paper bags one through four and slide a mystery bottle into each before anyone arrives. Ask guests to bring a bottle under a set budget, or curate the lineup yourself. Record each real price on your reveal sheet, then zip your lips. The bags stay on until the very end.

Pour in the Right Order

Pour light to bold so no wine gets bullied off the palate. Start with sparkling and crisp whites, move to lighter reds, and save the boldest red for the finale. Keep pours small, about two fingers, with water and plain crackers between rounds. Nobody needs a full glass of wine number one.

Score As You Go

Hand every guest a scorecard and a pen with strict instructions to judge shamelessly. After each pour, guests jot the look, the smell, a three word verdict, a grape guess, a price guess, and a score out of ten. No peeking at neighbors. Confidence counts; accuracy earns bragging rights.

Crown the Winner

When the last pour is scored, unbag the bottles one at a time for the big reveal. Tally the scores, crown the highest rated bottle, and announce the real prices from your reveal sheet. Hand out the superlative awards, then toast whoever gave the cheapest bottle their highest score.

Wine Tasting Scorecard: Wines One and Two

Judge each mystery pour like a seasoned critic who also happens to be at a party. Work top to bottom while the wine is still in your glass, commit to your guesses in ink, and remember that there are no wrong answers, only wildly confident ones.

Wine Number One

- | | |
|--|--|
| ☐ Looks: pale, medium, or deep? | ☐ Guess the grape |
| ☐ Smell: fruit, spice, oak, or mystery? | ☐ Guess the price |
| ☐ First sip verdict in three words | ☐ Buy again: yes, no, or only if someone else pays? |
| ☐ Body: light, medium, or full? | ☐ Score out of ten |

Wine Number Two

- | | |
|--|--|
| ☐ Looks: pale, medium, or deep? | ☐ Guess the grape |
| ☐ Smell: fruit, spice, oak, or mystery? | ☐ Guess the price |

- | | |
|--|--|
| ☐ Looks: pale, medium, or deep? | ☐ Guess the grape |
| ☐ Smell: fruit, spice, oak, or mystery? | ☐ Guess the price |
| ☐ First sip verdict in three words | ☐ Buy again: yes, no, or only if someone else pays? |
| ☐ Body: light, medium, or full? | ☐ Score out of ten |

Wine Number Four

- | | |
|--|--|
| ☐ Looks: pale, medium, or deep? | ☐ Guess the grape |
| ☐ Smell: fruit, spice, oak, or mystery? | ☐ Guess the price |
| ☐ First sip verdict in three words | ☐ Buy again: yes, no, or only if someone else pays? |
| ☐ Body: light, medium, or full? | ☐ Score out of ten |

Wine Superlative Awards

Cut out the awards and hand the stack to the host before the tasting begins. After the reveal, present each one with the gravity of a lifetime achievement ceremony. Every guest should leave holding at least one questionable honor. Cut along the dashed lines.

 wine Best Nose, Self Proclaimed: swirled, sniffed, and declared notes no one else could find	 wine The Case Buyer: fell in love by glass two and started planning shelf space	 wine Boldest Wrong Guess: named a grape with total confidence and zero accuracy
 wine The Human Corkscrew: first to volunteer for every opening ceremony	 wine Most Dramatic Sip: every taste arrived with a full theatrical performance	 wine The Budget Bloodhound: sniffed out the cheapest bottle without breaking a sweat
 wine Fanciest Vocabulary: said earthy undertones out loud and truly meant it	 wine The Loyal Pour: picked a favorite early and defended it all night long	 wine Best Poker Face: revealed absolutely nothing, not even after wine four
 wine The Note Taker: filled every line of the scorecard like it was a final exam	 wine Swirl Champion: not one drop lost, not one wrist untrained	 wine The Late Bloomer: hated wine one, married wine four

Sip and Say

Between pours, pull a prompt and answer it out loud while the table weighs in. There is no winning here, only excellent conversation and at least one confession nobody saw coming. You may skip a prompt, but know that the table will notice.

- | | |
|---|---|
| ☐ Describe this wine like a movie villain | ☐ If this wine were a perfume, who at this table would wear it? |
| ☐ Give this wine a dating profile bio in one sentence | ☐ Describe this wine like a real estate listing |
| ☐ What meal is this wine quietly begging to be paired with? | ☐ What is the most you would honestly pay for tonight's favorite pour? |
| ☐ Confess: have you ever chosen a bottle purely for its label? | ☐ Invent a tasting note that sounds expensive and means nothing |
| ☐ Describe your first sip using only weather words | ☐ Which pour tonight would your mother approve of, and why? |
| ☐ If this wine had a job, what would it be? | ☐ Admit it: do you swirl for science or swirl for show? |
| ☐ What decade does this wine belong in, and why? | ☐ What snack would you smuggle into the fanciest tasting room? |
| ☐ Tell the story of the worst bottle you ever paid for | ☐ Describe this wine as a text you would regret sending |
| ☐ Toast the person on your left and make it embarrassingly sincere | ☐ If this wine could talk, what would it say about you? |
| ☐ Rate your wine knowledge honestly: expert, faker, or happy amateur? | ☐ Name the person here most likely to become a wine snob by wine four |
| ☐ Share the fancy tasting word you use when you have no idea what to say | ☐ Give the host a compliment worthy of a five star review |
