

HOW TO PLAY

easy to read

Start Here: Using the Large Print Pack

Who this is for Older adults who find standard print hard to read, and the caregivers and activity directors working with them. The text is set larger and more openly spaced, with fewer items on each page, so a page never feels crowded.

Getting the best result

Print at full size with no scaling, on plain white or cream paper rather than glossy, which reduces glare. Good light from the side helps more than light from behind. If someone reads better with a magnifier, these pages still work well with one.

How to lead it

Read each line aloud as well as showing it, so the activity works whether or not the person reads it themselves. Give plenty of time. There are no wrong answers in the conversation pages, only stories worth hearing.

CUT-OUT CARDS

easy to read

One Question at a Time

Cut along the lines and hand over one card at a time. One large question per card, so there is never a page of small text to work through. Cut along the dashed lines.

 one What was the house you grew up in like?	 one Who made you laugh when you were young?	 one What was your favorite meal?
 one What work did you do?	 one Where did you feel happiest?	 one What music did you love?
 one Did you have a pet? Tell me about it.	 one What did you do on a summer day?	 one Who taught you something important?
 one What are you proud of?	 one What always makes you smile?	 one What would you tell a young person today?

A Note on Reading and Sight

Print settings that help

Print at one hundred percent with no scaling, and choose plain paper over glossy. If your printer has a draft mode, turn it off, because full black text is easier to read than a light gray.

Set up the room

Put the light beside the reader rather than behind them, and clear the table so there is nothing competing with the page. Sit on the same side as their better eye if they have one.

Read together, not at

Say each line out loud as you point to it. The aim is a shared moment, not a reading test, and the activity works just as well if you do all the reading.
