

CLEAN

with love

Most Likely To (clean version)

The host reads a prompt out loud, counts down from three, and everyone points at the guest it fits best. Most fingers wins the round. Keep a tally and crown your champion at the end. This sheet is safe for showers, brunches, and future in-laws.

- | | |
|--|---|
| ☐ Most likely to cry during the toasts before anyone even says the bride's name | ☐ Most likely to plan the next girls trip before this one is over |
| ☐ Most likely to have this weekend planned in a color coded spreadsheet | ☐ Most likely to say 'one more song' at least five times tonight |
| ☐ Most likely to befriend a total stranger and invite them to the wedding | ☐ Most likely to accidentally spoil the surprise she helped plan |
| ☐ Most likely to start the dance floor and be the last one to leave it | ☐ Most likely to be the reason we are late to the dinner reservation |
| ☐ Most likely to pack seven pairs of shoes and wear the same pair all weekend | ☐ Most likely to spend the whole reception chatting with the bride's grandma |
| ☐ Most likely to take 200 photos this weekend and post exactly three | ☐ Most likely to laugh at their own joke before the punchline lands |
| ☐ Most likely to fall asleep first tonight, snacks still in hand | ☐ Most likely to send a made it home safe text with three paragraphs |
| ☐ Most likely to retell the proposal story better than the bride does | ☐ Most likely to remember exactly what everyone ordered at brunch in 2019 |
| ☐ Most likely to have emergency snacks in their bag right now | ☐ Most likely to have already interviewed the bride's partner over coffee |
| ☐ Most likely to text the group chat from the next room over | ☐ Most likely to get lost driving somewhere they have been ten times |
| ☐ Most likely to give a pep talk so good it belongs on a poster | ☐ Most likely to tear up when the bride and her partner have their first dance |

SPICY

with love

Most Likely To (spicy version)

Same rules, later hour. The host reads a prompt, everyone points on three, and whoever collects the most fingers owns it. Award a point, or a sip, whatever your crew is into. Best played after dinner when it is just the group.

- ☐ Most likely to suggest a round of shots and vanish before they arrive
- ☐ Most likely to know the bartender's entire life story by midnight
- ☐ Most likely to sweet talk the whole group into the VIP section
- ☐ Most likely to text an ex before the weekend is over
- ☐ Most likely to lose one shoe and gain three new stories
- ☐ Most likely to order 'one last round' three separate times
- ☐ Most likely to ask the bride wildly personal questions after one cocktail
- ☐ Most likely to wake up wearing someone else's sunglasses
- ☐ Most likely to start a dance battle with complete strangers
- ☐ Most likely to comfort a crying stranger in the bathroom line
- ☐ Most likely to reveal a hidden talent only after the second margarita
- ☐ Most likely to brag about their partner's looks with zero shame
- ☐ Most likely to plan the after party while still at the first party
- ☐ Most likely to cry happy tears, then immediately order champagne
- ☐ Most likely to end the night barefoot, holding pizza, still dancing
- ☐ Most likely to kiss and absolutely tell
- ☐ Most likely to remember nothing but somehow have the best photos
- ☐ Most likely to sign the whole group up for karaoke without asking
- ☐ Most likely to need a mimosa before discussing last night's choices
- ☐ Most likely to flirt the table into free desserts, and succeed
- ☐ Most likely to give the bride scandalous honeymoon packing advice
- ☐ Most likely to slide into a DM they will absolutely deny tomorrow

HOW TO PLAY

with love

How to Host: Two Ways to Play

Classic Point-a-Finger

Gather everyone where they can see each other. The host reads a prompt, counts down from three, and on 'point!' every guest points at the person it fits best. Most fingers wins the round. Ties go to a dramatic revote, and the bride's finger settles any deadlock.

Card-Deal Style

Print a second copy of your sheet and cut the prompts into strips. Shuffle them into a bowl or fan them out face down. Guests take turns drawing one, reading it with maximum drama, and pleading their case for who it belongs to. The group votes, and the winner keeps the strip like a tiny trophy.

Scoring and Prizes

Keep a tally on the back of a sheet, or let guests collect their strips. Most rounds won takes the crown. Prize ideas: first pick of the snacks, playlist control for an hour, or immunity from cleanup duty. Playing the spicy sheet? A win can come with a celebratory sip.

Host Tips

Read the room before you pick a sheet. The clean version is safe for the shower crowd and future in-laws. Save the spicy version for later, when it is just the crew. Ten to twelve prompts makes a perfect quick round, so you never have to play a whole sheet in one sitting.