How to Host Find the Guest

Setup in Five Minutes

Print one card per guest, single sided, and set out more pens than you think you need. Hand cards out as people arrive so early birds start hunting right away. Use the main card for the big party and the Shower Edition when grandma and the in-laws are in the room. Cards on clipboards feel fancy and cost nothing.

Rules That Prevent Chaos

One signature per guest per card, no exceptions, or one social butterfly sweeps the board. Squares must actually be true; the host is the final judge and bribes must be shared. Signers sign, not the card holder. Cap it at five in a row for a quick round, or play to full blackout while the appetizers do their job.

Prize Ideas

Keep it small and fun: a candle, a cozy pair of socks, a sweet treat, a bloom pulled straight from the centerpiece, or first pick at the dessert table. Award a runner-up prize for the best square story, because someone always has one. The real prize is that every guest now has three new besties. You are welcome.
